

FOUNDATIONAL RESTORATIVE PRACTICES TRAINING SERIES

What is Restorative Practices?

Restorative Practices is a comprehensive approach to support connection and community building in schools and establish structures to repair harm. When implemented comprehensively and systematically, this approach has been found to reduce violence, unwanted behavior and bullying, and to increase restoration of relationships. When implemented within a multi-tiered structure, like MTSS, it significantly improves school culture and decreases the use of exclusionary discipline practices.

What is the structure of the training series?

This immersive training series is three full-day trainings and three virtual half-day community of practice sessions spread across a few months. Participants will leave with tools and strategies that can be applied immediately. This training is based on the Ali Hearn Coaching and Consulting Model.

Who should take the training and when?

- Group 1: Leadership teams, such as your MTSS team, who include systems leaders and implementation leaders who have the authority to make significant systems decisions. Group 1 attendees should share their district implementation plan with future training groups.
- Group 2: Teacher leaders and support staff are encouraged to attend if their district attended the previous round of training.
- Group 3+: Additional teachers and support staff.
